

Contents

Acknowledgments 7

An invitation 9

Part I: The AI Party-Crasher 13

Chapter 1: An author-centric history of publishing 15

Text 16

The printing press 21

Digital publishing 23

Digital content 27

Content $\neq$ text 29

Chapter 2: The rise of the machine 31

Understanding AI processing 34

AI AI AI 37

AI in the text cycle 40

AI as a productivity tool 48

Synthetic content 49

Chapter 3: Surprise! You've got personalization 57

Promise and reality 60

The limits of predicted personalization 64

Chapter 4: The party-crasher arrives 69

Competing intentions 72

Interpretation is a group event 74

Author's intentions 76

Reader's intentions 81

Work's intentions 84

Algorithm's intentions 88

Part II: Today's Challenge 91

Chapter 5: The barbarians are at the gate 93

Extreme personalization 98

Bias lurks in the system 105

Chapter 6: From conflict to cooperation 113

The afterparty 115

Feeding the beast 118

Chapter 7: Publishing, disrupted 123

"Human-in-the-loop" is a trap 131

Content operations infrastructure 134

Content maturity and AI 140

Costs and benefits 146

Chapter 8: Risk in the AI text cycle 151

Regulatory risk 151

Vendor lock-in and AI platforms 154

Business risk 156

Ingestion risk 158

Part III: The Future of Content 161

Chapter 9: Auditing content 163

Assessing content operations 169

Chapter 10: Managing the content supply chain 175

AI content operations maturity model 176

Content supply chain example 178

Reuse 186

Localization and translation 188

Not AI-first, but QA-first 196

Chapter 11: System architecture 199

Inputs 202

Docs-as-code 206

Factory configuration 208

Oversight and continuous improvement 223

Chapter 12: Governance and the fourth intention 233

Tracing provenance 235

Conversational UI 238

Disclosure guidelines 241

Liability and compliance 247

Chapter 13: New roles, new responsibilities 255

Preparing the workforce 262

AI literacy 268

Chapter 14: The next thirty years 271

Key terms 279

AI and our process 285

References 289

About the authors 301